

Glen Garioch

1991, Duncan Taylor Rare Auld range, 51.1%

Melon notes to the fore early on the nose; floral, especially carnations. Progressively more caramel, with Parma violet sweets. Pretty and feminine. Richer and fuller-bodied on the palate than the nose might suggest. Fresh fruit, apple juice, almonds, and gentle spices, slowly moving to milky coffee in the finish. The faintest hint of smoke pervades the flavor, but is very much a 'bit part' player in the ensemble.

—Vol. 20, #2

