

Penderyn Bourbon single cask

cask strength, 61.2%

The unusual distilling process and some maturation in Madeira casks has given standard Penderyn a liqueur-like, perfumey quality many whisky fans don't care for.

This is a single bourbon cask bottling of the 11th cask the distillery ever filled, to mark its 10th anniversary, and is less cloying, less feminine, and more gutsy than the standard version.

It's also very palatable and of excellent quality. Some will make it to America, but the price tag will deter all but the most passionate.
