

Glenfarclas Family Cask
1962 (Cask #2639)

48.9%

More of a reddish hue, but as equally robust as the 1961 (see below). Some baked characters alongside dried cherry and barberry, which shift toward balsamic-like concentration. Hint of black pudding (blood sausage) and bitter chocolate. The palate is tight and tannic, with a hint of smoke and cooked dried fruits.
Water loosens the tannic grip, allowing licorice to show. (U.S. exclusive.)

—Vol. 21, #2

