Not a lot of details offered past the "Cane • Corn Spirit" and "aged in oak for 2 years" on the label, and talk of a "honey mixture." Color is medium-amber; smell is thin, sweet, and lightly fruity. Not unpleasant in the mouth; candy-sweet, maybe a bit bland, and an ashy hint. The finish does have a little 'bit-o-honey' flavor that hangs high for a long time. Overall, not bad, but not real exciting either.
