

Lady of the Glen
(distilled at Benrinnes)
14 year old 1998

57.8%

This is a new bottler to me and they've made quite an arrival with this, a classic Benrinnes. This is a distillery where meatiness is desirable, and this is as thick and savory as a slow-cooked pheasant stew or cassoulet, with an added herbal and prune element. A real sweetness and a pleasing lift of sulfur (which can enhance whiskies) add to the complexity.

Chewy on the tongue, with earthiness revealed by water. £65

—Vol. 22, #1

