

Bunnahabhain Ceobanach

46.3%

This is master blender Ian MacMillan's interpretation of what Bunna' would have tasted like when the distillery was founded in 1881. There's light smoke, coming across like smoked halibut, a mineral edge, white fruits, and a freshness like a freshly starched shirt. Water brings out almond. On the palate, the smoke offers a slightly peppery, almost Talisker-esque kick. Light lemon and sweet fruits in the center. Though there's no age statement, none of the whiskies are under 10 years. £46

—Vol. 24, #1

