

Fettercairn Fasque

42%

While its regular stablemate Fior contains a proportion of peated malt, Fasque is unpeated, and the best comparison is with the now-discontinued 12 year old '1824' house bottling. The nose is fragrant, with sherry, cherries, and vanilla. Relatively full-bodied, with a rich, spicy palate, focusing on Jaffa oranges and dark chocolate.

It dries quite quickly to black coffee and spicy licorice, which linger in the mouth, along with a note of toffee. £35

—Vol. 24, #1

