 Longrow Tokaji Wood 10 year old, 55.6% I have tasted many superb Longrow whiskies in the past 15 years (not to mention some wonderful Tokaji dessert wines). This isn't one of them. Longrow is an assertive whisky, and I can see the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't integrate well. You'll find notes of 10 year old, 55.6% I have tasted many superb Longrow whiskies in the past 15 years (not to mention some wonderful Tokaji dessert wines). This isn't one of them. Longrow is an assertive whisky, and I can see the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't I have tasted many superb Longrow whiskies in the past 15 years (not to mention some wonderful Tokaji dessert wines). This isn't one of them. Longrow is an assertive whisky, and I can see the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't years (not to mention some wonderful Tokaji dessert wines). This isn't one of them. Longrow is an assertive whisky, and I can see the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't wonderful Tokaji dessert wines). This isn't one of them. Longrow is an assertive whisky, and I can see the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't This isn't one of them. Longrow is an assertive whisky, and I can see the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't the logic of finishing the whisky in an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't an equally big Hungarian wine. The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't The flavors are equal in intensity and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't and this is certainly a dynamic whisky but they just don't integrate well. You'll find notes of 5
waxed fruit, raisin, ripe barley, smoked fig, and toffee. Cloying, waxy finish.
×
—Vol. 15, #3
x x x
×