Though reticent at first, the nose opens up to honey, caramel, and some pleasant mustiness, followed by a late wave of sweet and savory spices. There's an undercurrent of smoke, too, which transfers smoothly onto the palate, though it's overpowered by just-burnt cinnamon sugar toast and slightly charred sugar cookie.

Fig Newton and raisin are also here in spades, creating a dark, fruity experience. The finish is short and hot, and it delivers a smooth hit of menthol.
